Message from the Principal...

Why is 24 the magic number?

The new Washington State 24 Credit Requirement to graduate from high school has created a considerable amount of conversation over the past couple of years. Prior to this requirement, at CHS we had a 21 credit requirement to graduate and the state required 20 credits to graduate. Starting with the class of 2019 (this year's sophomores) the requirement is 24 credits. The concern and conversations around the state have primarily been related to the fact that if schools are on a six period day, similar to CHS and the majority of schools in Washington State, there is little room for failing classes. As a result, students can only earn 24 credits if they pass all their classes during their four years in high school. Given this lack of "wiggle room" many districts have been either changing their schedule or investigating changing to a seven or eight period day, which would allow students to earn between 28 and 32 credits during their four years in high school.

Many parents may have been wondering (or maybe not) where does the district stand in regard to any changes at this time? Two years ago a group of RSD and CHS staff members began meeting to discuss this change and how to best meet the needs of our students. While it seems like it would make sense and be a simple task to change the schedule, we have been hesitant for several reasons:

First, changing to a schedule that allows a student to take more classes, such as in a seven or eight period day, does allow them to make up for failed classes. However, it also means that all students are taking more classes, which adds to their class and study load. Is it really fair to add to the load of all students? We know that we have some students that struggle in school with passing all of their classes. Is it smart to now give these students more classes to prepare for, when they are struggling under the current six period day?

Second, many districts are moving to a straight four period block schedule, students have less classes, but can still earn more credits. Typically, in a four block schedule students take only four classes for the first semester and these classes are concentrated so that they can be awarded a 1.0 credit per semester. During the second semester they take completely differently classes. Under this model students would earn eight credits for the year. Seems simple, especially given this is the schedule CHS had in the late 1990's until the fall of 2005 when we switched to the current schedule. Why did we do this? The fact was, many of our students who do struggle in important content areas, would have for example; math in the fall of the year, which would conclude at the end of the first semester. This student would then have no math class second semester, summer break would come and go, and then would have math in the fall. This allowed for a great deal of time without math reinforcement and we saw that many students struggled with the next level of math (the same applies for science and language arts). Teachers were spending a great deal of time re-teaching information because the student hadn't had the content for so long. Another problem with this schedule is you are fitting in a full year's curriculum into a single semester, requiring the class to move along at a more rapid pace. Although we know that longer blocks of time for class are beneficial, this schedule was not good for students.

There is also a 4 block schedule built around an eight period day that is organized into A and B days, with students going to periods 1, 3, 5, and 7 on A days, and 2, 4, 6, and 8 on B days. This means that students are always preparing for 8 periods, adding to everyone's class load.

Third, one of the popular schedules to surface is a five period trimester schedule which allows students to take three "trimesters" of class over the course of the year. This means they may have some blocks off where they will lose information, similar to the 4 period block schedule, but it could have less of an impact as you would schedule a student into the same class for two trimesters per year in the content areas. Students receive a .5 credit for each trimester, allowing them to earn 7.5 credits per year. One concern is that now a semester of curriculum is fit into a trimester, which like the four period day, means the class has to move rapidly. This is an interesting schedule and one that we will continue to investigate and monitor as some local schools incorporate it into their system.

Refund Policy for Student Fees:
Refunds for class fees must be requested by mid-term of the semester in which the class was originally scheduled. After mid-term, no refunds will be issued. Payments may be refunded or you can have your fee applied to a later season within the same school year if applicable. No refunds will be made from a prior year's payment.

In 2005 we adopted our current modified block schedule which allows for a mixture of straight six periods (Monday and Friday), allowing for students and teachers to have contact all year long, and block days which allows the longer daily contact time (three days per week). We believe this schedule has worked for our students for over ten years. So what do we do now? Well, as our group has met and discussed our students and their success rates in classes, some facts have become evident.

- Giving our struggling students more classes will not help them perform better; they may potentially fail more classes due to an increased work load.
- Changing the schedule without first reflecting on how our students do in the next few years would not be prudent. We do not want to make any impulsive changes we will regret. Your students are important to us and we can't make a mistake with their future. Not to mention we want to see if the state makes any more changes (I know this is hard to believe, but they do seem to make changes without looking at the long-term implications).
- When you move to a straight block of four or five periods, you will have larger class sizes (in a 6 period day teachers teach 5 classes and have one preparation period, in a 4 period block teachers teach only 3 periods and have 1 preparation period) if you do the math, we have less sections that our teachers can teach.
- Students overall are succeeding in the current schedule, given our graduation rate of 95%.

Sport participation refunds will only be issued prior to the first regular season competition. No refunds will be issued for students who become ineligible due to grades or Code of Conduct violations.

Football

Football Parents Meeting

Finally, what are we thinking about doing for our students who may be credit deficient?

- Beginning next year, we will be offering a 0 period and/or 7th period APEX on-line learning class. This will allow students the ability to make up a class outside of the regular school day, so they don't miss any of their regular curriculum. We will also be offering APEX on-line learning during one period of the regular school day.
- We have in place a Student Intervention Team that regularly meets to discuss students who are struggling and implement interventions to try and help them before they fail.
- We have implemented content advisories that provide additional support for student learning needs.
- We have also enhanced our summer school offerings through a partnership with WANIC for students to earn remediation or acceleration credits.

To conclude, we do not believe changing the schedule to accommodate students who are failing is the answer. We believe we should do everything in our power to ensure students are passing all of their classes. Working as a team with students, staff, and parents, we can help all students succeed.

Ray LaBate
Principal

The AIDS Omnibus Bill, enacted by the legislature, requires that all AIDS curriculum materials used in the district be state approved. School districts must also provide AIDS education "to all students grades five through twelve once during each school year." Riverview School District is using the state approved KNOW AIDS and F.L.A.S.H. programs, developed by the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and a team of school district, university and Department of Social and Health Services personnel.

At CHS we will be asking students to view a video presentation that deals with HIV and AIDS. The presentation will discuss the facts related to all aspects of contracting and treating HIV as well as current statistics. The presentation will be on Wednesday, May 10th during advisory.
